

Y.O.U., Inc. announces Jonathan Miller as new CIO

It is with great pleasure that Maurice Boisvert, President and CEO of Y.O.U., Inc announces the arrival of Jonathan Miller as the agency's new Chief Information Officer.

Jonathan comes to Y.O.U., Inc. from Lighthouse Academies, a national non-profit charter school organization. During his 4+ year tenure as the Director of Information Technology at Lighthouse, the organization grew from 4 to 10 schools. Under his guidance, the schools successfully integrated more than 2.5 million dollars in technology into the classroom. Jonathan was instrumental in launching new technologies within the organization, including interactive whiteboards, mobile labs and a new one-to-one laptop program for high school students. He was responsible for the expansion of the student information system, and spearheaded the effort to use qualitative data to make strategic decisions.

Prior to his position at Lighthouse Academies, Jonathan co-founded a technical services business whose focus was providing support for the medical and dental fields in Central Massachusetts. He was responsible for the implementation and integration of Electronic Health Records in the largest family practice in the area.

"It is because of Jonathan's extensive experience with electronic health records that Y.O.U., Inc. will be on the forefront as a leader in technology among non-profits," Paula Aiello, CFO remarked. "He will be a truly invaluable asset to the agency."

"Jonathan's experience in health care and education makes him the ideal leader for our technology team. As CIO, he will be the guiding force for Y.O.U., Inc. as our networking and information systems needs grow, and the next generation of technology evolves," said Mr. Boisvert.
